

ABSTRACT

A device or a pressure sensor for measuring a force or for measuring a pressure in a predefined direction. A packaging element, as well as a carrier element, and a sensor element are substantially compensated in relation to the sensing region of the sensor element with respect to their temperature-induced expansions.